The diagram consists of a central rounded rectangle with a thick black border. Inside this rectangle, the text "#x20" is written in a bold, black, sans-serif font. From the left and right sides of the central rectangle, horizontal lines extend outwards. These lines are connected to larger, rounded rectangular shapes. The line on the left connects to a shape that is part of a larger structure extending to the left edge of the image. The line on the right connects to a similar shape that extends to the right edge. At the far left and far right of the image, there are black arrowheads pointing towards the center, indicating a flow or connection from the edges into the central element.
